Honoring General.St. Louis, Jan. 13.—Fifteen and persons sat shivering as Governor Harmon of delivered an address before the celebration of the one anniversary of the battle
New Orleans, in which Andrew Jackson immortalized himself.
"Jackson urged a gradual reduction of tariff taxes," said the governor, "especially on necessities, at a time when they were levied mainly for revenue. When recently we saw the president against his just inclinaface of his express admissions, veto everywhere exclaimed, as they did in the days of the vacillating Buchanan,

The governor attacked the financial policy of the three last Republican administrations as having increased the federal outlay from $1-$2,000,000 every two years to more than $1,000,000,000 each year. He called most attention, however, to what he described as "one of the most abuses known in history," ar-protected manufacturers to collect from the public a much larger sum

THE "bowl fight" is one of the cherished institutions of the University of the freshman and sophomore classes. This winter the freshmen were the winners. About 400 of them were pitted against 250 sopho-

Philadelphia. Superior strategy gave the 1915 men their victory in the first half of the event. Their "bowl man," whose business it was to cross the field to the goal, entered the conflict wearing a red sweater, but in the melee he peeled it off, showing a blue one underneath, while other freshmen suddenly appeared by a like device in red sweaters. This confused the sophomores, and the real bowl man was permitted to reach the goal unmolested. In the second half the members of the two classes struggled for fifteen minutes to lay hands upon the bowl, which had been placed in the center of the field, the winning class being the one which could count the most hands on it at the close of the mixup. The sophomores had twenty-eight, but the superior numbers of the freshmen told, and they had thirty on the final count.

been considered for some days because of the belief that what is in effect a wage reduction was about to be put into effect. The new statute, which applies to females and minors only, made it compulsory on man-facturers to close their plants when the women and children left. It was found that the male operatives could not be kept profitably employed with the diminished supply of raw material.

Accost Other Operatives

Italian spinners of the Washington,
Wood and Ayres mills of the American Woolen company announced their intention to strike, and these operatives gathered outside the gates and announced that they would not go to work. They accosted other operatives and endeavored to persuade them to strike also, but most of the thousands brushed past the malcontents and went to work as usual.
This angered the Italians and they entered the Wood mill, shouting threats to everyone to quit work at once. Sticks, bobbins and weights were used as forcible arguments and many were injured, but none seriously. Many women fainted. The power was shut off and soon 6,000 employees were in idleness.A riot call was sounded on the fire alarm and every available man responded. The cops used their clubs freely and finally cleaned the strikers from the three mills. A large crowd of them then made their way to the Lawrence Duck company plant, where windows were smashed and a general fight with the police occurred. There were many women in the crowd, and they were particularly bitter against the police, who finally advanced with drawn clubs and made arrests.

Engineer Jasper Gregg, Fireman Hensler Dead, and Emmitt Mullenix Seriously Scalded—Fireman Pinned Beneath Wreckage. Another Wreck at Lyndon.

With a cannon-like roar heard for miles, east-bound B. & O. live stock freight No. 190 and west-bound quick dispatch freight No. 197, came together head-on just east of the station at Orient, at 2:52 Friday afternoon, causing one of the most disastrous freight wrecks in the history of the road, killing engineer of 190, Jasper Gregg, of Chillicothe, and H. W. Hensler, his fireman, of Cincinnati, while Emmitt Mullenix of Newark, brakeman, riding in the cab of 190, was injured so his recovery is almost impossible.

The wreck occurred at a sharp curve in the road, where 197 was just in the act of taking the siding. No. 190 had orders to wait until this was done, but the engineer who paid for his oversight with his life, overlooked the orders, probably due to not being familiar with the road. His train was going at full speed, probably 30 miles per hour, while 197 was standing still.

A number of Washington C. H. Citizens were on both trains, and did not reach this city until nearly ten o'clock when No. 198 backed down on its return to Cincinnati.

Two immense fires were kindled along the wreck, and this aided the passengers to pick their way over the difficult path where one misstep meant a plunge over the embankment. In many places they were forced to walk between the carcasses of steers and wade through the bloody snow. The sight caused some of the ladies to shrink in horror, and many nearly fainted as their eyes rested upon the awful spectacle.

Brakeman Mullenix, who was attended by Dr. Sherman Leach and other physicians who were hurried to the scene, was taken care of in the dingy little waiting room of the station at Orient, later being transferred to 107 and sent to the Protestant hospital in Columbus.

Wreck train from Chillicothe went around by Midland City and reached this city about eight o'clock, lingered here for a time and then went onward, reaching the wreck between ten and eleven. The work of clearing up the wreckage was commenced and the last remnant piled in the ditch and the road opened to traffic at nine o'clock Saturday morning.

Both engines were greatly damaged, and lifted from the rails, grinding viciously into the ties and roadbed. The total damage is estimated at over $50,000.

Conductor of 190, Harry Kale, of Newark, will probably lose his position for not taking a hand to prevent the wreck when his engineer over-run his orders.

THE HERALD was the first newspaper to be represented on the scene by special correspondent. Columbus newspaper men arriving more than one hour later.

WRECK AT LYNDON.

A peculiar wreck occurred at Lyndon Friday noon, when an east-bound passenger on the B. and O. S. W. frightened a horse, which broke loose from a wagon and bolted on the track. The engine threw the horse against a switch which was opened by the impact.

The engine passed over the main track, but the baggage car, smoker, diner and ladies' coach were derailed and hurled into a ditch.

No one was injured.

Two Organizations Want Limit Lifted

The County Commissioners' association and the "Boost Ohio" congress called together by Secretary A. P. Sandies, of the state board of agriculture in session in Columbus Thursday, favored a comprehensive system of road building.

Both urged that the people of the state be given a chance to vote on the question of removing the constitutional limitation of $750,000. Leaders in both societies have concluded with many others that the building of highways through the bond issue plan is the most feasible.

The commissioners' association says that there should be a provision made in the constitution to permit the issuing of state bonds not to exceed 1 per cent. of the grand tax duplicate and national aid by appropriation to be made by congress in aid to the states.

Mercury Drops To 15 Below Zero

Saturday morning the self-registering thermometer at Gossard's corner, stood at eight degrees below zero at 6:00 o'clock, and lingered several degrees below until late in the forenoon.

Other thermometers in the city and country registered anywhere from ten to twenty degrees below the zero mark, but a conservative estimate of the actual cold is placed at 15 degrees below. The heat from the building at Gossard's corner causes the thermometer to register several degrees warmer than it really is.

Family Afflicted One Child Dies

The family of Mose Sanderson of the West Lancaster neighborhood, is sorely afflicted, the mother and two children suffering from a severe type of diphtheria, and one child has passed away with the disease.

The family have been under quarantine for some little time, and anti-toxin in large quantities has been administered to prevent further spread of the disease. Besides the three who are ill, there are three children and the father who have not taken the dreaded disease.

Mr. Sanderson and his afflicted family live on a small farm near West Lancaster, on the Jamestown pike. Neighbors are rendering what assistance lies in their power, and it is believed the lives of those who are ill can be saved. Since the patients have grown so seriously ill, a physician from this city was summoned.

Mrs. Nancy Hall, the Lancaster woman charged with poisoning her 13-year-old daughter by putting arsenic in pancake flour is held in the county jail in that city awaiting preliminary hearing before the mayor. To Rev. Hugh Leith, who called at the jail the woman denied her guilt.

The accused woman is very ill, and has not talked much. She denies her guilt and every member of the family declare she is innocent of the heinous charge against her, and believe she will be acquitted of the crime of which she stands accused.

Another family in the city claim that they recently had pancakes for breakfast, and that several members of the family became very ill. The sack of meal from which the cakes were made was sent to the state chemist for examination, and if poison is found in the meal the case against Mrs. Hall will lose some of its weight, and would indicate that some fiend has deliberately placed poison in the meal to kill whoever it may.

Mrs. Hall's maiden name was Nancy Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zephaniah Brown, of Hooking county. Her parents are dead. Mr. and Mrs. Hall were married in Hooking county. Mr. Hall is a former Pickaway county man, and has a large number of friends in that county. State-wide interest is being manifested in the crime with which the woman is charged.

Edwin F. Price Inventor Of Two-speed Traction

Mr. Edwin F. Price, a former Washington man and a mechanic of marked ability, has just had patented an invention which promises to be a tremendous winner.

Mr. Price was born and raised in this city and has many warm friends here who will be pleased to hear of his success. "Ed" always was recognized as an able mechanic when he was employed here in the local mills.

The Upper Sandusky Ohio Daily Chief contains the following item of interest in connection with Mr. Price and his invention.

"Edwin F. Price, pattern maker and experimental worker, at the Ohio Manufacturing plant, recently received a patent from the patent office, at Washington, D. C., on a transmission for a two speed traction, which he invented over a year ago. The application for letters patent was filed February 2, 1911, and for efficiency of the traction truck."

Letters patent have been assigned to the Ohio Manufacturing company who have been using the transmission on their traction truck for some time past. The plant is doing a flourishing business and is receiving numerous orders for their product, which approaches as near to being practical as any machine of its kind. To Mr. Price's genius much is due for efficiency of the traction truck."

The singing will be a prominent feature of the meetings. The choir and congregation will have the assistance of a special singing evangelist, Harry J. Opie, of Tiffin, O. A boys' messenger service has been organized and other features will be added as required.

The public cordially invited to attend.

Coldest Morning Since Feb. 14, 1905

Not since 1905 has Washington C. H. and Fayette county experienced such a paralyzing cold wave as it has been in the throes of during the past week reaching the climax in 8 below zero early this morning.

The story of frozen pipes and plumbing troubles have become as numerous as presidential candidates, and the plumber is about the only man who wears the smile that won't come off. A few shivering business people were seen on the streets this morning, but no one braved the bitter cold except where it was a case of have to. Only a few country people were in during the day.

Seven years of winters without a day below the zero mark, according to the C. A. Gossard & Co. thermometer, which is becoming historic! No wonder our people have forgotten how it feels on any below zero morning!

Below is the tabulated record of the coldest day in each year from 1892 to 1912, as shown by records of the thermometer on the outside of C. A. Gossard & Co.'s jewelry store. Mr. Gossard has carefully kept these records and kindly furnished them to The Herald. In the entire 21 years it will be seen that there have only been 4 colder mornings and one registering the same icy temperature:

1892, Dec. 26, 6 a. m., 3 below zero.

1893, Jan. 14, 8:30 a. m., 17 below zero.

1894, Jan. 22, 6 a. m., 9 below zero.

1895, Jan. 8, 5:30 a. m., 11 below zero.

1896, Jan. 5, 6 a. m., 2 below zero.

1897, Jan. 26, 7 a. m., 3 below zero.

1898, Feb. 3, 6 a. m., 1 below zero.

1899, Feb. 9, 10, 13, 5 a. m., 14 below zero.

1900, Feb. 26, 5:30 a. m., 3 below zero.

1901, Jan. 31, 8 a. m., 3 below zero.

1902, Feb. 4, 6 a. m., 3 below zero.

1903, Jan. 12, 7 a. m., 2 below zero.

1904, Feb. 15, 6 a. m., 7 below zero.

1905, Feb. 14, 6 a. m., 8 below zero.

1906, Feb. 5, 6 a. m., 2 above.

1907, Jan. 28, 10 a. m., zero.

1908, Feb. 3, 9 a. m., 3 above.

1909, Feb. 1, 10 a. m., 19 above.

1910, Jan. 17, 9 a. m., zero.

1911, Dec. 11, 6 a. m., 10 above.

Jno. M. Bell Post Joint Installation

The joint installation of the John M. Bell Post and the Women's Relief Corps held their joint installation ceremony at the G. A. R. hall Friday night.

The occasion was altogether one of much pleasure and fraught with more than passing interest to the veterans of the post, the women who compose their auxiliary and their invited guests.

The large hall was warm and comfortable and decorated with flags, large and small.

The W. R. C. installation followed with Mrs. Wm. Davenport installing officer, and Mrs. Martin Hamm, conductress.

The officers installed were: President, Mrs. Emma Craig; Sr. Vice, Mrs. Henry Limes; Jr. Vice, Mrs. Horace Lydy; Conductress, Mrs. Adam Beck; Assistant Conductress, Mrs. William Devaney; Secretary, Mrs. A. T. Baldwin; Treasurer, Mrs. Jared Adams; Chaplain, Mrs. Nancy Roberts; Guard, Mrs. Wm. Fogle; Assistant Guard, Mrs. Dick Pearce; Press Correspondent, Mrs. O. S. Tobin; Patriotic Instructress, Mrs. F. G. Carpenter; Color Bearers, No. 1, Miss Callie Walton; No. 2, Miss Lillian Boswell; No. 3, Mrs. Clara Bonham; No. 4, Mrs. George Cox; Musicians, Mrs. Minnie Martin.

The installation music was furnished by Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Kidd.

After the ceremonies Smith Brothers served a delicious chicken pie supper, greatly enjoyed. There were 130 plates.

An orchestra was on taps and for two hours, dancing with old-fashioned quadrills and reels, was enjoyed as a wind-up to the memorable evening.

Edwin F. Price Inventor Of Two-speed Traction

Mr. Edwin F. Price, a former Washington man and a mechanic of marked ability, has just had patented an invention which promises to be a tremendous winner.

Mr. Price was born and raised in this city and has many warm friends here who will be pleased to hear of his success. "Ed" always was recognized as an able mechanic when he was employed here in the local mills.

The Upper Sandusky Ohio Daily Chief contains the following item of interest in connection with Mr. Price and his invention.

"Edwin F. Price, pattern maker and experimental worker, at the Ohio Manufacturing plant, recently received a patent from the patent office, at Washington, D. C., on a transmission for a two speed traction, which he invented over a year ago. The application for letters patent was filed February 2, 1911, and the patent was issued November 28.

The transmission, it is claimed, is the best that is made for a single cylinder engine. A majority of the other traction engines have only a single speed, while this transmission, which has a resemblance to the transmissions employed in automobiles, allows two speeds ahead and one reverse. The traction also runs smoother and easier, and can pull a heavy load two and one-half miles an hour and a light load four miles an hour.

Letters patent have been assigned to the Ohio Manufacturing company who have been using the transmission on their traction truck for some time past. The plant is doing a flourishing business and is receiving numerous orders for their product, which approaches as near to being practical as any machine of its kind. To Mr. Price's genius much is due for efficiency of the traction truck."

The singing will be a prominent feature of the meetings. The choir and congregation will have the assistance of a special singing evangelist, Harry J. Opie, of Tiffin, O. A boys' messenger service has been organized and other features will be added as required.

The public cordially invited to attend.

Coldest Morning Since Feb. 14, 1905

Not since 1905 has Washington C. H. and Fayette county experienced such a paralyzing cold wave as it has been in the throes of during the past week reaching the climax in 8 below zero early this morning.

The story of frozen pipes and plumbing troubles have become as numerous as presidential candidates, and the plumber is about the only man who wears the smile that won't come off. A few shivering business people were seen on the streets this morning, but no one braved the bitter cold except where it was a case of have to. Only a few country people were in during the day.

Seven years of winters without a day below the zero mark, according to the C. A. Gossard & Co. thermometer, which is becoming historic! No wonder our people have forgotten how it feels on any below zero morning!

Below is the tabulated record of the coldest day in each year from 1892 to 1912, as shown by records of the thermometer on the outside of C. A. Gossard & Co.'s jewelry store. Mr. Gossard has carefully kept these records and kindly furnished them to The Herald. In the entire 21 years it will be seen that there have only been 4 colder mornings and one registering the same icy temperature:

1892, Dec. 26, 6 a. m., 3 below zero.
1893, Jan. 14, 8:30 a. m., 17 below zero.
1894, Jan. 22, 6 a. m., 9 below zero.
1895, Jan. 8, 5:30 a. m., 11 below zero.
1896, Jan. 5, 6 a. m., 2 below zero.
1897, Jan. 26, 7 a. m., 3 below zero.
1898, Feb. 3, 6 a. m., 1 below zero.

1899, Feb. 9, 10, 13, 5 a. m., 14 below zero.
1900, Feb. 26, 5:30 a. m., 3 below zero.
1901, Jan. 31, 8 a. m., 3 below zero.
1902, Feb. 4, 6 a. m., 3 below zero.
1903, Jan. 12, 7 a. m., 2 below zero.
1904, Feb. 15, 6 a. m., 7 below zero.
1905, Feb. 14, 6 a. m., 8 below zero.
1906, Feb. 5, 6 a. m., 2 above zero.
1907, Jan. 28, 19 a. m., zero.
1908, Feb. 3, 9 a. m., 3 above zero.
1909, Feb. 1, 10 a. m., 10 above zero.
1910, Jan. 17, 9 a. m., zero.
1911, Dec. 11, 6 a. m., 10 above zero.

Jno. M. Bell Post Joint Installation

The joint installation of the John M. Bell Post and the Women's Relief Corps held their joint installation Friday night.

The occasion was altogether one of much pleasure and fraught with more than passing interest to the veterans of the post, the women who compose their auxiliary and their invited guests.

The large hall was warm and comfortable and decorated with flags, large and small.

The W. R. C. installation followed with Mrs. Wm. Davenport installing officer and Mrs. Martin Hamm, conductress.

The officers installed were: President, Mrs. Emma Craig; St. Vice, Mrs. Henry Limes; Jr. Vice, Mrs. Horace Lydy; Conductress, Mrs. Adam Beck; Assistant Conductress, Mrs. William Devaney; Secretary, Mrs. A. T. Baldwin; Treasurer, Mrs. Jared Adams; Chaplain, Mrs. Nancy Roberts; Guard, Mrs. Wm. Fogle; Assistant Guard, Mrs. Dick Pearce; Press Correspondent, Mrs. O. S. Tobin; Patriotic Instructress, Mrs. F. G. Carpenter; Color Bearers, No. 1, Miss Callie Walton; No. 2, Miss Lillian Boswell; No. 3, Mrs. Clara Bon-

ham; No. 4, Mrs. George Cox; Musicians, Mrs. Minnie Martin.

The installation music was furnished by Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Kidd. After the ceremonies Smith Brothers served a delicious chicken pie supper, greatly enjoyed. There were 120 plates.

OVER THE LINE.

The indictments charging William J. Burns, the great detective, with kidnaping the McNamaras, were very promptly and very properly wiped out of existence by the court at Indianapolis, on Thursday last.

It would have been a fine travesty on American justice if Detective Burns had even been called upon to defend seriously the indictment charging kidnaping, growing out of the arrest of two men who afterwards confessed their guilt of one of the most atrocious crimes of the age, simply because the crime was committed in one of the states of the nation and the guilty men were arrested in another state of the Union.

Fleeing from the scene of the awful crime, these men sought refuge across imaginary lines in another political subdivision of the Union.

The incident however, serves to remind us that to the various reforms now in the hopper to be ground out, supposedly for the public good, might be added one more, the breaking down of these troublesome and useless legal barriers between the states of the Union, at least so far as the pursuit and arrest of criminals is concerned.

The idea that persons guilty of crime can cross an imaginary line between states and snap their fingers at the pursuing officers until a reel or two of red tape is unwound, does not speak well for our advance in matters of law.

If Detective Burns had been deterred in his pursuit and arrest of the McNamaras by the formidable looking barriers of "state rights" as a protection to criminals, the guilty men might have escaped.

With that breadth of mind which goes to substance and discards formalities, Mr. Burns rode rough shod over those barriers and took the guilty men back to California to answer for their crime.

On the theory that "all is well that ends well", the McNamaras having confessed their guilt, the action of Mr. Burns is upheld.

Had the outcome at Los Angeles been different, there might have been a different result in the cases against Burns.

It is high time that this nonsense of separate governments be done away with so far as the pursuit of criminals is concerned at least.

Men who do not have the nerve and ability of William J. Burns, encounter them and are so appalled at the advantages thus afforded the criminal, give up the pursuit.

Of course the indictments against Burns were nollied. The legal obstacles of "state rights" as a protection to criminals should be nollied also.

A man guilty of crime should be subject to instant arrest wherever found under the stars and stripes without any delay and state lines should afford him no respite from pursuit.

Poetry - Today

MY BODY AND I.

I got this body in the Fleshing Shop
When it was small and puny-like
and red;
No teeth it had nor could it stand
erect—
A fuzzy down grew sparse upon
its head.
At sight of it the neighbors stood
and laughed.
And tickled it and jogged it up and
down;
Then some one put it in a little cart,
And wheeled it gayly through the
gaping town.
When it grew bigger and could walk
and run,
I wet it in the pond above the mill,
Or took it to a building called a
"School."
And there I had to keep it very still
And later, when its muscles stronger
grew,
I made it sow and reap to get its
grain,
And tanned it in the summer's fiercest
suns,
And toughened it with wind and
cold and rain.
It served to keep me near my friend,
the Earth,
It helped me well to get from place
to place,
And then, perhaps, a tiny bit of me
Has sometimes worked out through its hands and face!
How long I've had it! Longer than
it seems—
Since first they wrapt it in a linen
clout,
And now 'tis shriveled, patched and
breaking down—
I guess, forsooth, that I have worn
it out!
And if? Oh, bless you! I am ever
young.
A soul ne'er ages—is not bent nor
gray,
And when the body breaks and crum-
bles down—
The Fleshing Shop is just across
the way!

FINDS LONG LOST PET TURTLE

Farmer Had Carved Inscription on Its Shell in 1888 When He Was a Boy.

Harrisburg, Pa.—A farmer in southern Pennsylvania, went swimming very frequently last summer in Green lake. On one occasion one of his toes was suddenly caught and held with a viselike grip. He sputtered and tried to get loose all the way to the shore, almost fainting with the exertion. His catch was a large snapping turtle which had to be removed from his

The finger was lanced, but the poison spread to his arm, which it was feared would have to be amputated. Souder objected to arm, but as he grew worse he decided for the hospital.

Before leaving Clayton Souder said: "My arm feels better." At reaching the hospital he was well, and begged to be sent back home. But his brother who accompanied him, insisting on going to the hospital. He found that the arm was well, and was taken off and left to cure in three hours.

Souder says the only blood poisoning was sent him.

HAVE COURSE IN MATRIMONY

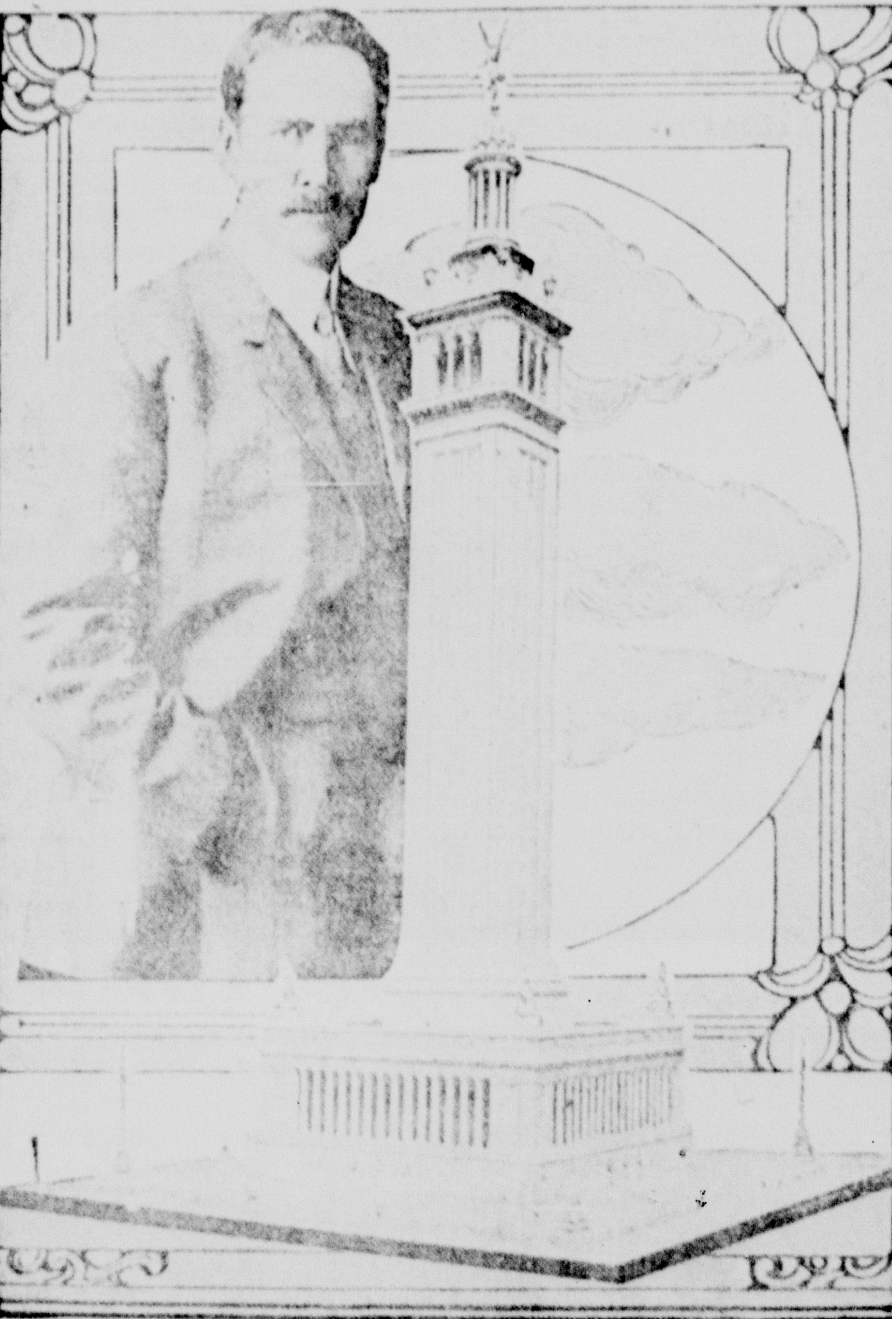

High School Girls Taught Mothercraft, and Domestic Science in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A matrimony has been included in the curriculum of the Garden High school here. Five girls are daily taking advantage of the course in domestic science, and are learning the art of housework.

It is planned that before the girls shall be permitted to marry next year, but some pressed about the need of the course, the girls have argued that "the female of the species" will be so adept in the art of matrimony and marriage of the year that she will find difficulty in imparting her to the less deadly male.

The girls are taught by themselves during course, instructed in household home dietetics, house counts, dressmaking, and even in such practical matters as plumbing are supposed to work and how much they paid.

Proposed Panama-Pacific Tower and Man Who Plans It

WHEN San Francisco celebrates the completion of the Panama canal in 1915 by the opening of the Panama-Pacific exposition one of its features, as now planned, will be a symbolic tower. The plans call for a granite anchored base 220 feet square, a shaft 85 feet square of steel construction and with marble and terra cotta veneering, rising 625 feet above the base. The approximate cost of the structure will be $1,000,000. The tower is designed to serve as an observation point while the exposition lasts. Afterward, from its height and its position overlooking the Golden Gate (the top will be 1,100 feet above sea level), it may be of use to the government as a lighthouse. The idea of the tower was suggested by the president of the exposition company, Charles C. Moore, whose photograph is reproduced.

Men who do not have the nerve and ability of William J. Burns, encounter them and are so appalled at the advantages thus afforded the criminal, give up the pursuit.

Of course the indictments against Burns were nolled. The legal obstacles of "state rights" as a protection to criminals should be nolled also.

A man guilty of crime should be subject to instant arrest wherever found under the stars and stripes without any delay and state lines should afford him no respite from pursuit.

Proposed Panama-Pacific Tower and Man Who Plans It

WHEN San Francisco celebrates the completion of the Panama canal in 1915 by the opening of the Panama-Pacific exposition one of its features, as now planned, will be a symbolic tower. The plans call for a granite anchored base 220 feet square, a shaft 85 feet square of steel construction and with marble and terra cotta veneering, rising 625 feet above the base. The approximate cost of the structure will be $1,000,000. The tower is designed to serve as an observation point while the exposition lasts. Afterward, from its height and its position overlooking the Golden Gate (the top will be 1,300 feet above sea level), it may be of use to the government as a lighthouse. The idea of the tower was suggested by the president of the exposition company, Charles C. Moore, whose photograph is reproduced.

Poetry—Today

MY BODY AND I.

I got this body in the Flething Shop
When it was small and puny-like
and red,
No teeth it had nor could it stand
erect—

A fuzzy down grew sparse upon
its head.

At sight of it the neighbors stood
and laughed.

And tickled it and jogged it up and
down;

Then some one put it in a little cart,
And wheeled it gayly through the
gaping town.

When it grew bigger and could walk
and run,

I wet it in the pond above the mill,
Or took it to a building called a
"school."

And there I had to keep it very still
And later, when its muscles stronger
grew,

I made it sow and reap to get its
grain.

And tanned it in the summer's fiercest
suns,

And toughened it with wind and
cold and rain.

It served to keep me near my friend,
the Earth.

It helped me well to get from place
to place,

And then, perhaps, a tiny bit of me
Has sometimes worked out through its hands and feet!

How long I've had it! Longer than
it seems—

Since first they wrapt it in a linen
clout,

And now 'tis shriveled, patched and
breaking down—

I guess, forsooth, that I have worn
it out!

And if— Oh, bless you! I am ever
young

A soul ne'er ages—is not bent nor
gray,

And when the body breaks and crum-
bles down—

The Flething Shop is just across
the way!

of something amiss in throat or lungs. Colds mean a tearing down; an attack on vitality. A remedy to cure properly must not drug away the cough. It must search out and remove the real trouble. Then the cure is a right one. Our

FINDS LONG LOST PET TURTLE

Farmer Had Carved Inscription on Its Shell in 1888 When He Was a Boy.

Harrisburg, Pa.—A farmer in southern Pennsylvania, went swimming very frequently last summer in Green lake. On one occasion one of his toes was suddenly caught and held with a vise-like grip. He spluttered and tried to get loose all the way to the shore, almost fainting with the exertion.

His catch was a large snapping turtle which had to be removed from his toe with a chisel and hammer. The following inscription was found carved on the shell: "H. T. 1888. 'Why,' gasped the astonished farmer, 'I carved that on a pet turtle when I was fifteen years old, and I've been looking for him ever since. He found me first, however.'"

POISON SCARED OUT OF HIM

Young New Jersey Farmer, Fearing Loss of Arm, Has Singular Recovery.

Clayton, N. J.—Joseph G. Souder, a prosperous young farmer of Clayton, who recently purchased the Bubbs farm for $10,000, was bitten on the finger by a hog he was killing several weeks ago, and blood poisoning set in. The finger was lanced, but the poison spread to his arm, which it was feared would have to be anputated. Souder objected to arm, but as he grew worse

Before leaving Clayton, Souder said: "My arm feels better." Reaching the hospital he was well, and begged to be sent home. But his brother who accompanied him, insisted on going to the hospital. He found that the arm was well, and was taken off and left to cure in three hours.

Souder says the only account for the strange cure—blood poisoning was sent him.

HAVE COURSE IN MA

High School Girls Taught Mothercraft, and Domestic Science in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A matrimony has been made curriculum of the Garden High school here. Five girls are daily taking advantage of the instruction in mothercraft, domestic science, and home management.

It is planned that boys and girls shall be permitted to course next year, but are pressed about the need of a course that "the female class" will be so adept in of courtship and marriage of the year that she will difficulty in imparting to the less deadly male.

The girls are taught to themselves during course instructed in household accounts, dressmaking, even in such practical matters as plumbing are supposed to work and how much they paid.

PLAN SUMMER HOME

Colorado Citizens Would Provide Mansion for President.

Drawings Have Been Finished for a Veritable Palace of Picturesque Design for Occupancy by the Chief Executive.

Denver, Colo.—The citizens of Colorado have started a campaign to provide for the president of the United States a summer home in this state. The plans, which have already been completed, call for a veritable palace of most original and picturesque design, the like of which does not exist in this country. It will take rank with any of the existing palaces of European monarchs. The idea originated with John Brishen Walker, and a committee of prominent Colorado men is now in charge of the movement.

The proposed home is on the Mount Falcon, 15 miles from Denver, in the front range of the Rockies. It is planned to make the gift a token from the people of Colorado, and contributions are now coming in from all over the state. The fund was started by subscriptions from leading bankers and business men in Denver. Ground has already been broken and it is believed that the building will be constructed in time for the next summer season.

During his recent visit to Denver, President Taft was apprised of the summer home plan, and expressed the opinion that no locality could offer finer natural attractions for such a structure.

The proposed house will be unique in many ways and exceedingly attractive. The plans call for a noble and massive structure of gray granite, contrasting with the natural setting for the building. The house will provide ample room for the president's attendants and assistants. Automobiles would bring the summer home with forty minutes of Denver.

The view that the site of the building commands is its strongest feature, and it is this that was strongly urged in making a choice of sites. Among all the wonderful and beautiful scenic spots within a short distance of Denver, Mount Falcon, perhaps, stands pre-eminent. From the north terrace of the mountain, upon which the drawing-room and library will open, the steep mountain side, wooded with pines, drops down 2,000 feet into the rushing waters of Bear creek; to the south, 75 miles away, is Pike's peak. Denver lies 14 miles away to the northeast. When a passing cloud covers the city with its shadow, the plains seem barren of houses. Then suddenly the sunlight pierces through, and a great city stands revealed.

PLACES MONEY IN SHOE BOX

Woman Mistakes Receptacle in a New York Hotel for Safety Deposit Vault.

New York.—Mistaking a small wooden box built into the wall of her room at the Waldorf-Astoria for a safe-deposit box, a woman of Georgetown, S. C., who arrived in New York, deposited $900 in cash and jewelry valued at $5,000 in the box that night, and retired with the satisfaction that her valuables would be secure. When she awoke next morning the gems and money were missing.

Soon afterward William Peterson, a hotel valet, turned up with the $900 and the missing jewelry.

"While making my rounds for the shoes at 2 a. m.," said he, "I found this money and jewelry in the box where the shoes are placed."

Smoker Stricken Blind.

Venice, Ill.—Martin Conway, an excavating contractor, inspecting work on the river levee here, stopped suddenly and raised his hands to his eyes. He tried for a moment to rub away the thick mist that had suddenly fallen over his vision. A moment before he had been looking over the long dike, without a thought of any impairment of his sight. Now he is totally blind.

His friends believe Conway's constant smoking affected the optic nerve, causing the sudden breakdown.

IS IDOL OF THE TEACHERS

Grace C. Strachan, Leader of the Movement for Equal Pay in New York

New York.—Grace C. Strachan is considerable of a heroine among the 14,000 women who teach in the schools of New York. She is president of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers and was a leading advocate in the long struggle which resulted in equal pay for teachers regardless of sex.

In New York as elsewhere in American cities women predominate in the teaching force, but until lately what men were employed received larger salaries. The women believed they should receive the same remuneration.

as men doing similar work and finally they won out. But the victory has not been altogether without its drawbacks. Heretofore, because of the difference in salaries demanded, the tendency has been to exclude the men in favor of the women wherever possible.

Now, however, the salaries being equal, the women find themselves differentiated against whenever men teachers are procurable. The number of the latter, however, is limited, and not very many women find themselves excluded from the better positions.

Out of the campaign for the passage of the equal pay bill have grown many charges of the corrupt use of money.

At the hearing held in New York Miss Strachan stated that the women had spent $100,000 to bring about the passage of the equal pay law. Miss Strachan denies that any of this money was paid to influence legislation. Most of it went to lawyers. On the other hand Owen Behan has been charged before the grievance department of the Bar association with having raised a corruption fund to further legislation for the men teachers.

CROCKETT'S LONE STAR HOME

Old House Near San Antonio Treasured as a Memorial to the Texas Hero.

San Antonio, Tex.—Davy Crockett's old home in Texas in the vicinity of San Antonio is treasured as a memorial to the Lone Star hero whose adventurous career in the early days of the west is filled with many thrilling events.

As one of the defenders of the Alamo he has won fame as a martyr to liberty. He was one of the six survivors who surrendered to the Mexican general, Santa Anna, and was shot after the surrender by Santa Anna's orders. Crockett's career has furnished the theme for many a thrilling tale of the frontier.

He was born in Tennessee in 1786, and his youth was spent in hunting and pioneer work in the western part of that state. He was elected to congress from that state in 1826, but his opposition to certain of Jackson's measures resulted in his defeat in 1830. He joined the Texans in the struggle for independence from Mexico in 1836, and was one of the famous 140 who defended the Alamo at the cost of their lives.

UMBRELLA ROUTS A FOOTPAD

Plucky Pennsylvania Young Woman Beats Bold Purse Grabber Till He Runs Away.

Altoona, Pa.—Instead of screaming and then fainting when she was held up by a bold highwayman while on her way home with half a month's pay in her purse, Miss Margaret Dixon, a pretty auditor in a shoe store, courageously repelled the insolent fellow. She was carrying a closed umbrella, and when the footpad attempted to wrest her handbag from her grasp, she bravely began beating him over the head.

The attack took him by surprise, and he was on the run before he knew it, and there was not a single pedestrian in sight.

HAS PITIFUL RECORD

Carolina Woman Inmate of Home for 67 Years.

Lynn Anderson Has Been in the "Poor House" of Union County, N. C., Ever Since It Was Built in the Year 1845.

Raleigh, N. C.—There is in the county home of Union county, this state, a woman who has been its inmate since the home was established, some 67 years ago. Lynn Anderson is her name, and she is now over seventy years old. Lynn's mother was the wife of Jack Anderson, who had been in the days of his youth a sailor and was known in the northern part of Union county, where he lived, as "Sailor Jack Anderson." After the death of "Sailor Jack," his wife, being penniless, and unable to make a living for herself and two daughters, Margaret and Lynn, took them to the county home, which had just been built, on a farm three miles southeast of Monroe, the county seat, and they were the first inmates of the "county poor house," as it was then called.

When Lynn entered the county home she was four years old. Her mother and her sister died many years ago. She knows no other home than the one provided by the county, and has not, in all the long years since she entered it, spent a night from under its roof; and she has never in all these years been more than half a mile from its walls, except when she made the trip, more than 50 years ago, from the old site in the county to Monroe, when the county home was moved to that town.

Lynn is a remarkably strong woman and has done an immense amount of hard work. She has drawn and carried enough water from the well out in the yard at the county home, before waterworks were put in, to float a gunboat; and if all the wood she has carried in her arms from woodpile to house could be put in one stack, it would be higher than the Union county court house. Lynn has had but one attack of illness, and that was a slight one. She is still able to work, and is a willing worker. The new county home of Union, two miles west of Monroe, will be completed in a short time and Lynn will go to it, making the second journey she has made since as a little four-year-old girl she trudged by her mother's side over the long road from the humble cabin home on Grassy creek to the poor house.

FIND TOMB OF ANCIENT RACE

Skulls Found in Kansas Are Declared to Be Unlike Those of Indians.

Junction City, Kan.—While tearing down an old mound that lay in his wheat field, John Noland, who lives several miles northwest of town, found several skeletons in a fair state of preservation.

The mound, apparently, was of natural origin, and the oldest settlers remembered it. They say that it looked like the work of nature, and many supposed that it was a grave, pile covered with sod. No attention was ever paid to the mound until several months ago, when Mr. Noland decided to level it and utilize the land for wheat instead of plowing around it as farmers have done for the past 50 years.

The mound was about 20 feet in diameter and about five feet high. It was covered with sod, with an occasional rock protruding. When Mr. Noland started to level it, he found that about eight inches underneath the sod was a rock wall. He kept digging the dirt away, following the rocks, until he had unearthed about half of the wall. Then he started at the top, which was slightly concave, and gave evidences of once having been arched over. Digging down in the center, he came upon many well preserved skulls and bones, in piles at different places within the artificial cave.

People who have examined the skulls say that they do not resemble Indian skulls, and the absence of Indian weapons and utensils would seem to indicate that bones were not those of Indians.

Texas Rabbits Have Horns.

Cureo, Texas.—Several giant jackrabbits that have evidently been crossed with white-tail deer have been killed in this section and brought here during the last few weeks. The rabbits have well-defined antlers several inches long. Many jackrabbits with horns have also been killed recently.

story, exceptionally good for such a young girl, and reflecting credit on the Freshmen class.

Of much interest was Pitt Fitzgerald's talk on Charles Dana Gibson and his work. Illustrated with the drawings of the artist.

Wilbur Adams entertained with a comic recitation and Misses Dorothy Fullerton and Lillian Davis concluded the program with a beautiful duet.

Russel Mobley delivered an oration "Walpole's Attack on Pitt," and Hays Dill gave Pitt's reply, both very interesting numbers.

Between numbers the Boys' Glee club rendered two highly appreciated choruses, which were enthusiastically endorsed.

Short Weights and Measures Found by the Deputy Sealer
Weights Invariably Short and Sixty Per Cent of Measures Too Small--Collects Measures Below the Standard--Deputy Sealer Issues Notice to Public.

Deputy County Sealer of Weights and Measures, Henry Jones, has been busy the past two weeks, sealing weights and measures in the city and county, and has collected quite a few measures which have proven short, although not known to be before the tests were made.
Mr. Jones reports that many scales are found out of balance some being against the dealer and others being in favor, and practically scale weights are found to be light and must be made heavier by the application of lead. The dealers have been honest in their opinion that the scales were correct, as testified by some balancing in such a manner as to allow the dealer to sell more than the amount actually recorded.
Of the measures examined, the percentage of measures below the standard runs fully sixty per cent. In some instances and liquid measures have been used for dry measures. Some of the patent measuring devices were found short.
Platform scales have varied as much as nine pounds overweight on each 100 pounds weighed, but were soon adjusted to weigh correctly.
Regarding the selling of produce by measure, Mr. Jones has issued the following notice to dealers and consumers:
"A few dealers believe that when a customer gives an order and does not mention how it shall be filled, that it can be sold by measure if the dealer so desires. Everything must be weighed or counted unless the dealer makes a contract with the customer, as provided in Section 6415 of the General Code, which says:
"A can of oil is not always a gallon, and when a customer asks for a certain quantity it must be that amount and if the can will not hold it, the dealer must so advise to protect himself; the weights and measures law putting all on an equal basis, and it is my desire that the consumers report anything irregular to me. Honest goods are essential, also honest weights and measures. You never know what you pay until you know what you get."
"Consumers having scales or measures in their home can bring them to my office in the basement of the court house any time for testing, and no charges will be made."
"I ask the co-operation of all dealers and consumers to help put all on an equal and fair basis. Respectfully,
H. M. JONES,
County Deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures."

Citizens Wrought Up Over Aged Man's Conduct
Village of White Oak and Vicinity Interested in Prosecution of Man Charged With Grossly Insulting Young Girl.
White Oak Village and the surrounding community in Madison township is aroused over the alleged misconduct of Patrick Kane, aged about 65 years, who lives in the white Oak neighborhood, and who is alleged to have grossly insulted Marie Toops, aged 15, daughter of William Toops.
Mr. Toops appeared in this city and filed an affidavit before Justice T. N. Craig, charging Kane with using obscene language in the presence of his daughter. The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable J. T. Ontoal, but Kane could not be found, and a close watch is now being maintained until the man appears.
Kane is alleged to have repeatedly insulted the girl while she was on her way to school, and when the affair came to the ears of the father he sought the courts to deal with the man. The man's language is claimed to have been most vile, and of such a character as to arouse the anger of the citizens of the community, and threats of tar and feathers have been made.

SWEDES MAY TURN SURPRISE

Trainer Hjertberg Says Scandinavian Olympic Athletes Look and Are Much Interested in Work.

Ernest W. Hjertberg, the trainer, who is in his native country shaping up the Swedish talent for the fifth Olympiad, which is to be held in Stockholm from June 29 to July 22, writes to a New York friend that he has strong hopes of his pupils winning the laurels.

Hjertberg was successful as trainer for the I. A. C. the N. Y. A. C. and Columbia university. When he had charge of the college boys they won pretty much everything.

The Swede was selected last summer by the committee formed in Sweden to arrange for the Olympic games of 1912, and it was a proud day for Hjertberg when he went home to undertake his patriotic task. It was like coming into his own, a consummation that he had not foreseen when he came to America, because there was here a better field for his athletic instruction than in Scandinavia.

The trainer writes as follows: "I actually think that the Swedes are going to win the majority of the events. I never saw any men come up so fast, and the pride and patriotism they show in their work, the care they take of themselves and their obedience show how much in earnest they are. 'The world will be surprised in 1912.'"

REAL BILL NYE IN BASEBALL

Tip O'Neill, President of Western League, Tells Humorous Story of Player Who Sought Release.

Tip O'Neill, president of the Western league, says he knows of a real humorist who is a young ball player not yet out of the minor leagues. He said this young Bill Nye appeared before the board of arbitration of minor leagues and aired his grievances as follows:

"I played in this league in 1910. At the close of the season I discovered they owed me for eleven days' pay. When I went after my back pay they said they would let me know about it the next day. After thinking over it a day they told me they had paid me and they got me to thinking the same."

"I played in that league again in 1911. They owed me for nineteen days back pay. When I went to them they said they would think it over. They 'thought' over it two days this time and then got me to thinking the same thing. Since then, however, the more I have thought it over the more convinced I have become that they not only owed me for eleven days in 1910, but for nineteen days in 1911."

"Now, your honors, I don't ask that this back pay be ordered up. All I do ask is that I be declared a free agent and be released from this 'hypnotic league.'"

KILBANE AFTER ABE ATTELL

Plans Being Made for Battle for Featherweight Championship at Los Angeles, Feb. 22.

A fight between Abe Attehl and Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, O., to decide the featherweight championship, will be staged at Vernon, Cal.

Abe Attehl.

February 22, if plans of Tom McCarey, manager of the Pacific Athletic club, at Vernon, go through.

To Pitch for Five Years. Jack Coombs says that he will be willing to quit after ten years of pitching and go back to his farm in West Kennebunk, Me., for good. He has about five years more before him.

"A pitcher," says Coombs, "goes about ten years. I mean by that that his stuff works well about that length of time. After that he may be able to work along for a couple of years through his knowledge of the batters, but he hasn't the same sort of stuff that he had when he was in his prime. Personally, I figure that I am good for about five years longer, having been with the Athletics five years. I am not counting the few months from July, 1906, when I joined the club after leaving Colby. It may be that my theory is wrong, but that's my idea about a pitcher's tenure of office."

Fast Boston Trio. As a trio, Speaker, Hooper and Duffy Lewis of the Red Sox beat out any other set of outfielders in the American league in "nailing" base runners. They aggregated 80 assists, while Jackson, Birmingham and Graney of Cleveland were next with 73.

Abstain Goes to Minors. Bill Abstein, who has played with several teams in the major leagues, has signed with the Memphis team of the Southern association, having lost his berth with Jersey City. He will guard first base.

GOOD ARBITRATORS ARE RARE

Combination of Keen Eye, Nimble Brain and Nerve Not Common—Not More Than First Class.

Good umpires are rare. In the whole country there are not more than ten first-rate ones. The combination of the keen eye, nimble brain and cool nerve is not a common one.

The umpire is the chain lightning of baseball. His decisions are rendered in the fifth part of a second; he renders them knowing that he must stand by them afterwards, no matter what happens. Every man inside the fence, whether blinded by prejudice or loyalty to the home team, sees the same things and, therefore, feels that he has a right to his own opinion; but the umpire is the one man who is paid to know what he sees.

The prize fight referee sometimes has to decide which boxer won a hard battle. He has had time in which to review the situation; the moving picture of the fight stretches backward in his memory. Should the choice prove a difficult one there is always the comfortable middle ground—the draw decision, in which neither man wins nor loses. The baseball umpire can render no draw decisions. The man is safe or he is out.

When two race horses come nodding down to the wire and two noses flash by the post so close together that a finger breadth means thousands of dollars to the backers, the race track judge may fall back on the dead heat. The baseball umpire has no dead heats. Watching foot and ball, he must know which one was first. He can confer with no one. Right or wrong, the judgment must be made in the twinkling of an eye.

PICK PHILLIES TO WIN FLAG

Many Unprejudiced Critics Select Manager Doolin's Aggregation to Land Championship Pennant.

Many close critics—outside of Philadelphia, too, and hence unprejudiced—are picking the Philadelphia Nationals for the pennant honors in 1912. Clark Griffith and Frank Bancroft think highly of their chances and declare that only hard luck and injuries knocked the Phils out of the glory this season. A great deal, of course, depends on Doolin himself. If he is laid up again, the catching staff is through, for none of the relief men who were tried during Charlie's absence seemer to fill the bill fully. The pitching will be excellent—ranking right up with the best in the league.

Alexander, Moore and Chalmers are a foundation good enough for anybody's hurling forces, and these three will pitch 105 games among them. Ladders Knabe, Doolan and Lobert make up an infield which has few rivals in either league—one whale of an infield, fast and bustling, full of fire and ginger.

The outfield, Magee, Paskert and Titus, with Beck and Cravath as filling, is also choice. Not hitting strength, plenty for all practical purposes, fielding strength, A1, and team play sure to improve steadily. It is the sort of a team which must have a good start to win. Should the Phils get away badly, they will crumple up; should they start as well as they did last spring and escape the troubles of 1911, it will be almost impossible to beat them off.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mr. Business Man.

Why have you plenty to keep you and yours comfortable—food, clothes, fuel—comforts of life, this cold weather? Because God has given you favorable environments, your faculties, ability, health. As you sit tomorrow and meditate upon what blessings you are enjoying, and how other in this city are suffering; children, mothers, who have not enough to keep them warm, not enough to eat, remember the women of the Kitchen Garden of this city are giving their time to try and relieve the distress. They are in need of funds. If you don't want anybody to know that you have a warm heart, or if you don't want your "left-hand to know what your right-hand doeth", go now, and get an envelope and put in that envelope a one, two, five, ten, twenty, fifty or hundred dollar bill, and mail it tomorrow to Miss Lina Willis, president of the Kitchen Garden, and every cent of that money will bring relief to some one who is suffering. Their treasury is empty and calls are urgent.

Washington has never been called upon and failed. How much will I give? Not how little.

The Kitchen Garden knows nothing of this letter being written. Surprise and help them now.

Chestnut Case Is Carried Up

George Chestnut, plaintiff in a replevin suit which has been pending in the court of Justice Craig for a long time, has carried the case up to Common Pleas court, seeking the recovery of certain chattel property valued at $21.50, which he claims is rightfully his, and which is now in the possession of Joseph Chestnut, his brother.

The case was tried before a jury which awarded the property in question to the defendant in the action. This is the property which has caused so much trouble between the two brothers, and is what Constable Oatneal was trying to recover when assaulted by Joe Chestnut some three months ago.

SWEDES MAY TURN SURPRISE GOOD ARBITRATORS ARE RARE

Trainer Hjertberg Says Scandinavian Olympic Athletes Look and Are Much Interested in Work.

Ernest W. Hjertberg, the trainer, who is in his native country shaping up the Swedish talent for the fifth Olympiad, which is to be held in Stockholm from June 29 to July 22, writes to a New York friend that he has strong hopes of his pupils winning the laurels.

Hjertberg was successful as trainer for the I. A. C., the N. Y. A. C. and Columbia university. When he had charge of the college boys they won pretty much everything.

The Swede was selected last summer by the committee formed in Sweden to arrange for the Olympic games of 1912, and it was a proud day for Hjertberg when he went home to undertake his patriotic task. It was like coming into his own, a consummation that he had not foreseen when he came to America, because there was here a better field for his athletic instruction than in Scandinavia.

The trainer writes as follows: "I actually think that the Swedes are going to win the majority of the events. I never saw any men come up so fast, and the pride and patriotism they show in their work, the care they take of themselves and their obedience show how much in earnest they are. 'The world will be surprised in 1912.'"

REAL BILL NYE IN BASEBALL

Tip O'Neill, President of Western League, Tells Humorous Story of Player Who Sought Release.

Tip O'Neill, president of the Western league, says he knows of a real humorist who is a young ball player not yet out of the minor leagues. He said this young Bill Nye appeared before the board of arbitration of minor leagues and aired his grievances as follows:

"I played in this league in 1910. At the close of the season I discovered they owed me for eleven days' pay. When I went after my back pay they said they would let me know about it the next day. After thinking over it a day they told me they had paid me and they got me to thinking the same."

"I played in that league again in 1911. They owed me for nineteen days back pay. When I went to them they said they would think it over. They 'thought' over it two days this time and then got me to thinking the same thing. Since then, however, the more I have thought it over the more convinced I have become that they not only owed me for eleven days in 1910, but for nineteen days in 1911."

"Now, your honors, I don't ask that this back pay be ordered up. All I do ask is that I be declared a free agent and be released from this 'hypnotic league.'"

KILBANE AFTER ABE ATTELL

Plans Being Made for Battle for Featherweight Championship at Los Angeles, Feb. 22.

A fight between Abe Attehl and Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, O., to decide the featherweight championship, will be staged at Vernon, Cal.

To Pitch for Five Years.

Jack Coombs says that he will be willing to quit after ten years of pitching and go back to his farm in West Kennelburg, Me., for good. He has about five years more before him.

"A pitcher," says Coombs, "goes about ten years. I mean by that that his stuff works well about that length of time. After that he may be able to work along for a couple of years through his knowledge of the batters, but he hasn't the same sort of stuff that he had when he was in his prime. Personally, I figure that I am good for about five years longer, having been with the Athletics five years. I am not counting the few months from July, 1906, when I joined the club after leaving Colby. It may be that my theory is wrong, but that's my idea about a pitcher's tenure of office."

Fast Boston Trio.

As a trio, Speaker, Hooper and Duffy Lewis of the Red Sox bent out any other set of outfielders in the American league in "nailing" base runners. They aggregated 80 assists, while Jackson, Birmingham and Graney of Cleveland were next with 73.

Abstein Goes to Minor.

Bill Abstein, who has played with several teams in the major leagues, has signed with the Memphis team of the Southern association, having lost his berth with Jersey City. He will guard first base.

Combination of Keen Eye, Nimble Brain and Nerve Not Common—Not More Than First Class.

Good umpires are rare. In the whole country there are not more than ten first-rate ones. The combination of the keen eye, nimble brain and cool nerve is not a common one.

The umpire is the chain lightning of baseball. His decisions are rendered in the fifth part of a second; he renders them knowing that he must stand by them afterwards, no matter what happens. Every man inside the fence, whether blinded by prejudice or loyalty to the home team, sees the same things and, therefore, feels that he has a right to his own opinion; but the umpire is the one man who is paid to know what he sees.

The prize fight referee sometimes has to decide which boxer won a hard battle. He has had time in which to review the situation; the moving picture of the fight stretches backward in his memory. Should the choice prove a difficult one there is always the comfortable middle ground—the draw decision, in which neither man wins nor loses. The baseball umpire can render no draw decisions. The man is safe or he is out.

When two race horses come nodding down to the wire and two noses flash by the post so close together that a finger breadth means thousands of dollars to the backers, the race track judge may fall back on the dead heat. The baseball umpire has no dead heats. Watching foot and ball, he must know which one was first. He can confer with no one. Right or wrong, the judgment must be made in the twinkling of an eye.

PICK PHILLIES TO WIN FLAG

Many Unprejudiced Critics Select Manager Doolin's Aggregation to Land Championship Pennant.

Many close critics—outside of Philadelphia, too, and hence unprejudiced—are picking the Philadelphia Nationals for the pennant honors in 1912. Clark Griffith and Frank Bancroft think highly of their chances and declare that only hard luck and injuries knocked the Phils out of the glory this season. A great deal, of course, depends on Doolin himself. If he is laid up again the catching staff is through, for none of the relief men who were tried during Charles' absence seemed to fill the bill fully. The pitching will be excellent—ranking right up with the best in the league.

Alexander, Moore and Chalmers are a foundation good enough for anybody's hurling forces, and these three will pitch 195 games among them. Lunders, Knabe, Doolan and Lobert make up an infield which has few rivals in either league—one whale of an infield, fast and bustling, full of fire and ginger.

The outfield, Magree, Paskert and Titus, with Beck and Cravath as filling, is also choice. Not hitting strength, plenty for all practical purposes; fielding strength, A1, and team play sure to improve steadily. It is the sort of a team which must have a good start to win. Should the Phils get away badly, they will crumple up; should they start as well as they did last spring and escape the troubles of 1911, it will be almost impossible to head them off.

leans team in 1910 when Jack O'Connor touted the gent to Bob Hedges of the Browns. Hedges tried to purchase Jackson's release, but the youngster belonged to the Philadelphia Athletics. Charlie Sommers of Cleveland traded Briscoe Lord for Jackson.

Honolulu Takes Up Rowing.

Rowing has sprouted as a sport in far-off Honolulu. There is to be a Hawaiian regatta next September and the champion amateur crews of the Pacific coast will measure leagues with the best the island can produce.

"All on!" a dozen voices signaled, men scattered in every direction as Lestrage sprang to his place. The hours passed on the wheels of excitement and suspense. When Lestrage came in again, only a watch convinced Dick that it was midnight. "You gave the order?" Lestrage asked.

"Yes."

He descended, taking off his mask and showing a face white with fatigue under the streaks of dust and grime.

"I'll be all right in half an hour," he nodded, in answer to Dick's exclamation. "Send one of the boys for coffee, will you please? Rupert needs some, too. Here, one of you others, ask one of those life doctor's apprentices to come over with a fresh bandage; my arm's a trifle untidy."

In fact, his right sleeve was wet and red, where the strain of driving had reopened the injury of the day before. But he would not allow Dick to speak of it.

"I'm going to spend an hour or two resting. Come in, Ffrench, and we'll chat in the intervals, if you like."

"And Rupert?" "Where's he?" Dick wondered, peering into the dark with a vague impression of lurking dangers on every side.

"He's hurried in out of the night air," reassured familiar accents; a small figure lounged across into the light, making vigorous use of a dripping towel. "Tell Darling I feel faint and I'm going over to that grand stand café a la car to get some pie. I'll be back in time to read over my last lesson from the chauffeur's correspondence school. Oh, see what's here!"

A telegraph messenger boy had come up to Dick.

"Richard Ffrench?" he verified. "Sign, please."

The message was from New York. "All coming down," Dick read. "Limousine making delay. Wire me at St. Royal of race. Bailey."

Far from pleased, young Ffrench hurriedly wrote the desired answer and gave it to the boy to be sent. But he thrust the yellow envelope into his pocket before turning to the tent where Lestrage was drinking cheap black coffee while an impatient young surgeon hovered near.

The hour's rest was characteristically spent. Washed, bandaged, and refreshed, Lestrage dropped on a cot in the back of the tent and pushed a roll of motor garments beneath his head for a pillow. There he intermittently spoke to his companion of whatever the moment suggested; listening to every sound of the race and interspersing acute comment, starting up whenever the voice of his own machine hinted that the driver was disobeying instructions or the shrill klaxon gave warning of trouble. But through it all Dick gathered much of the family story.

"My mother was a Californian," Lestrage once said, coming back from a tour of inspection. "She was twenty times as much alive as any Ffrench that ever existed. I've been told, I fancy she passed that quality on to me—you know she died when I was born—for I nearly drove the family mad. They expected the worst of me, and I gave the best worst I had. But," he turned to Dick the clear candor of his smile. "It was rather a decent worst, I honestly believe. The most outrageous thing I ever did was to lead a set of seniors in hoisting a cow into the dean's library one night, and so get myself expelled from college."

"A cow?" the other echoed.

"A fat cow, and it moored," he stuffed the pillow into a more comfortable position. "Is that our car running in?" No, it's just passing. If Frank doesn't wreck my machine, I'll get this race. And then, the same week, my chum and roommate ran away with a Donatella girl of some variety show and married her. I was romantic myself at twenty-one, so I helped him through with it. He was wealthy and she was pretty; it seemed to fit. I believe they've stayed married ever since, by the way. But somehow the reporters got affairs mixed and published me as the bridegroom. Have you got a cigar? I smoke about three times a year, and this is one of them. Yes, there was a fine scene when I went home that night, a Broadway melodrama. I lost my temper easier then, by the time my father and uncle gave me time to speak, I was too angry to defend myself and set them right. I supposed they would learn the truth by the next day, anyhow. And I left home for good in a dinner coat and raglan with something under ten dollars in odd change. What's that?"

"That," was the harsh alarm of the official klaxon, coupled with the cry of countless voices. The ambulance going clanged as Lestrage sprang to his feet and reached the door.

"Which car?" he called.

Rupert answered first.

"Not ours. Number eight's burning up after a smash on the far turn."

"Jack's car," identified Lestrage, and stood for an instant. "Go flag Frank. I'll take the machine again myself. It's one o'clock and I've got to win this race."

Several men ran across to the track in compliance. Lestrage turned to make ready, but paused beside the awed Dick to look over the infield toward the flaming blotch against the dark sky.

He was in to change a tire ten minutes ago," observed Rupert, beside them. "Tell Lestrage I'm doing time catchin' him," he yelled to me. Here's boring his broncho machine pitched him clear from the fireworks."

When the Mercury car swung in a moment later, Lestrage lingered for a last word to Dick.

"I'm engaged to Emily," he said, gravely. "I don't know what she will bear of me, if anything happens. I've told you the truth. I'm old enough to see it now. And I tried to square things."

CHAPTER IX.

In the delicate, fresh June dawn, the Ffrench limousine crept into the beach inclosure.

"We're here," said Bailey, to his traveling companions. "You can't park the car in front by the fence, Mr. David might see you and kill himself by a misturn. Come up to the grandstand seats."

Mr. Ffrench got out in silence and assisted Emily to descend; a pale and wide-eyed Emily behind her veil.

"The boys were calling extras," she suggested faintly. "They said three accidents on the track."

Bailey turned to a blue and gold of-foal panning.

"Number seven all right?" he asked.

"On the track, Lestrage driving," was the prompt response. "Leading by thirty-two miles."

A puff of black smoke rushed back, followed by a puff of white smoke. The car was in the lead. Number seven, Lestrage, was in the lead.

young light, lay the huge oval meadow and the track edging it.

"I've sent over for Mr. Dick," Bailey informed the other two. "He's been here, and he can tell what's doing. Four cars are out of the race. There's Mr. David coming!"

A gray machine shot around the west curve, hurtled roaring down the straight stretch past the stand and crossed before them, the mechanician rising in his seat to catch the pendant linen streamers and wipe the dust from the driver's goggles in preparation for the "death turn" ahead. There was a series of rapid explosions as the driver shut off his motor, the machine swerved almost facing the infield fence and slid around the bend with a skidding lurch that threw a cloud of soil high in the air. Emily cried out. Mr. Ffrench half rose in his place.

"What's the matter?" dryly queried Bailey. "He's been doing that all night, and a pretty turn he makes, too. He's been doing it for about five years, in fact, earning his living, only we didn't see him. Here goes another."

Mr. Ffrench put on his pince-nez, preserving the dignity of outward composure. Emily saw and heard nothing; she was following Lestrage around the far sides of the course, around until again he flashed past her, repeating his former feat with appalling exactitude.

It was hardly more than five minutes before Dick came hurrying toward them; cross, tired, dust-streaked and gasoline-scented.

"I don't see why you wanted to come," he began before he reached them. "I'm busy enough now. We're leading; if Lestrage holds out we'll pin. But he's driving alone; Frank went out an hour ago, on the second relief, when he went through the paddock fence and broke his leg. It didn't hurt the machine a bit, except tires, but it lost us twenty-six laps. And it leaves Lestrage with thirteen steady hours at the wheel. He says he can do it."

"He's fit?" Bailey questioned.

Dick turned a peevish regard upon him.

"I don't know what you call fit. He says he is. His hands are blistered already, his right arm has been bandaged twice where he hurt it pulling me away from the gear-cutter yesterday, and he's had three hours' rest out of the last eleven. See that heap of junk over there; that's where the Alan car burned up last night and sent its driver and mechanician to the hospital. I suppose if Lestrage isn't fit and makes a miscue we'll see something like that happen to him and Rupert."

"Here Goes Another."

"No!" Emily cried piteously.

Remorse clutched Dick.

"I forgot you, cousin," he apologized.

"Don't go off, Lestrage swears he feels fine and gives at me for worrying. Don't look like that."

"Richard, you will go down and order our car withdrawn from the race," Mr. Ffrench stated, with his most absolute finality. "This has continued long enough. If we had not been arrested in New York for exceeding the speed limit, I should have been here to end this scene at midnight."

Stunned, his nephew stared at him.

"Withdraw!"

"Precisely. And desire David to come here."

"I won't," said Dick flatly. "If you want to rub it into Lestrage that way, send Bailey. And I say it's a confounded shame."

"Richard!"

His round face ablaze, Dick thrust his hands in his pockets, facing his uncle stubbornly.

"After his splendid fight, to stop him now? Do you know how they take being put out those fellows? Why, when the Italian car went off the track for good, last night, with its chain tangled up with everything underneath, its driver sat down and cried. And you'd come down on Lestrage when he's winning—I won't do it. I won't! Send Bailey; I can't tell him."

"If you want to discredit the car and its driver, Mr. Ffrench, you can do it without me," slowly added Bailey. "But it won't be any use to send for Mr. David, because he won't come."

The autocrat of his little world looked from one rebel to the other, confounded with the unprecedented.

"If I wish to withdraw him, it is to place him out of danger," he retorted with asperity. "Not because I wish to mortify him, naturally. Is that clear? Does he want to pass the next thirteen hours under this ordeal?"

"To tell you what he wants," answered Dick. "He wants to be let alone. It seems to me he's earned that."

When Ffrench opened his lips and closed them again without speech. It had not been his life's habit to let people alone and the art was acquired with difficulty.

"I admit I do not comprehend the feelings you describe," he conceded, at last. "But there is one person who has the right to decide whether David shall continue this risk of his life. Emily, do you wish the car withdrawn?"

There was a gasp from the other two men.

"I!" the young girl exclaimed, amazed. "I can call him here—safe."

Her voice died out as Lestrage's car roared past, overtaking two rivals on the turn and sliding between them with an audacity that provoked rounds of applause from the spectators. To call him in from that, to have him safe with her—the mere thought was a delight that caught her breath. Yet, she knew Lestrage.

The three men watched her in keen suspense. The Mercury car had passed twice again before she raised her head, and in that space of a hundred seconds Emily reached the final unselfishness.

"What David wants," she said.

"Uncle, what David wants."
